HEALING SPRINGS.

Correspondence of the Richmond Dispatch.]

Your water-ismished citizens might well envy the sojourners at this lovely beath fountain when they know that that great panacea for so many cf the lifs to which man is helr, the bealing water, has in nowise been curtailed by the general drought which afflets the State. The counties generally in Virginia are in a sad plight, and in the state. The counties generally in Virginia are in a sad plight, and the serious of the situation and the fear that our city is only beginning to experience the sad effects of a limited water supply as a result of a great drought. Viewing the prospect from this lofty height away up here in the mountains,

one. The roads through these mountain wateys may be traced for miles by the clouds of dust which hover about them.
The fields even, in this exceptionably verdant section, are beginning to be parched up, and, worst of all, the great number of Irections springs and streams which feed
the head waters of the James have gone dry; so that formers have to hand water for miles to supply their homes and their stock.
A bold spring near here, which has never before in the memory of "the oidest inhabitant" falled of an abundant supply, has now good dry. Mineral springs, owing doubtless to the depth of bheir sources,
have happity been uneffected by the season.

That all crops have been litterally burned near the ground being bakes and exhibiting great cracks or desares throughout the land. Consequently all the grass has been killed out, the roots even being dried up and dead. Many farmers, he rays, are trouvied for means of arbeitstence, as this after failure of all regetation was preceded by short crops had year. Strange to say, the cattle have not fallen of much, not withstanding they are living upon rag-weed. However, most of the farmers are selling off and shipping all their stock. This state of things, he represents, extends as far as Wythe county, where they have had plentiful rains item July. Fram Lynchburg to Wythe, he represents that the passing trains are setting the fields after all along the line.

I must, however, turn from this dry subject to the discussion of the charms of this stely spot, which seems verily

WARSAW, August 23, 1881.

Captain F. S. Blair spoke here last night.
A proposition was made for a joint discussion on his own terms, which he positively sion for over a week. It has the power to lay the county levy, pass on all claims due by it, fix the rate of compensation of the ratious county officers, and generally is authorized to adjust all matters relating to the government of the county. The Board was so equally divided politically that the matter of the chairmanship had to be decided by lot.

The Courthouse village has not been so extensively populated for a long time as it was on Thursday the day of the combined Sunday-school pic-nic there.

No disturbance is expected at Chester tonight, as the result of the threats of certain drunken White-Oak Railroad Company employés a few nights since. The people have prepared themselves to put down all such prepared themselves to put down all such such people, and that prompted by signals from their white leaders, seemed to demoralize and throw a damper on his feelings, and he wound up with half an hour's talk, congratulating himself, no doubt, that he had at least the whole field to himself, as THE MOUNTAINS—BAD REPORTS PROM OTHER SECTIONS—THE HEALING AN OASIS IN THE DESERT—A CHARMING COMPANY AND HOW THEY AMUSE THEMSELVES—MUSIC, MEN, &C. Mr. Jones then referred to the Democratic platform, and as he paid tribute after tribute to the noble trio who, standing upon that platform, bear the banners of their party, the audience become enthusiastic and demonstrative. The meeting was called in the interest of Republicans and Readjusters, but from the close attention which was given Mr. Jones, and the frequent applause with which his remarks were greeted, it was evident that the meeting was with him. The Readjusters were utterly demoralized at the poor showing which their champion made, and the universal opinion was that their cause raceived a blow in this county from which it can never recover. Poor Blair called out as the sudience dispersed that Paul would be here next month, and would meet any Funder; but if he is not an improvement on Blair 1 am satisfied dis friends will not allow him to speak.

This afternoon, after the usual delightful lunch (alas that it is the last!), I inspected the establishment wherein the electric light is generated for the city. The managers were very courteous, and I was shown over every part of the establishment, remaining to see the lamps lighted to-night. The Brush system is used, and it works well. I have some facts about it, but no room for them here. Enough to say, we must have the light in Richmond, and must not be too long about it. The last meeting of the Association was held to-night. This last meeting is called, I believe, "Section Q," and it is expected to be a wholly unrelaxed, not to say undignified, affair. Resolutions thanking every body in turn are given out to six or eight of the wittier members, and they are ex-pected to use their gifts. Some of the speeches to-night were fairly good, but most of them rather poor. BY virtue of a decree of the Circuit Court for Meckienburg county rendered at the Mayterm, 1881. in the chansery mit of W. Towner's executor vs. W.

A. Jamerson, &c., I shall, on the 13TH DAY OF SEPTEMBER, 1881.

in front of the Brick Hotel in Clarksville, Va., sell to the hishest bidder that truly valuable TRACT OF LAND, lying near Clarksville (Baif a mile), on Roancke river, known as OCONEECHEE, being the homestead of the late Hon. William Townes, containing 1,005% ACRES (more or less). This is one of the most valuable farms on the Roanoke. The improvements are fine, consisting of a splendid mansion-house of some fourteen rooms, with all necessary out-buildings. This tract has a very large body of fine river low-grounds as well as a large body of forest- and up-lands. It is not often that such property comes into market. The farm is well adapted to the growth of all of the crops of this section, including due tobacco and coston. It should be remembered that the R. and M. ratiroad is soon to be completed to Clarksville.

Persons wishing to secure a valuable and desirable home or make a good investment should examine this property.
